

Where can Geography take you?

Photo Courtesy of Shutterstock

Jobs for Geographers

Environmental Scientist

Policy Analyst

Climatologist

Meteorologist

Geomorphologist

Hydrologist

Urban Planner

Land Use planner

Environmental Impact Assessor

Environmental Manager

Environmental Consultant

Environment Monitoring Officer

Resource Management Advisor

Iwi Planner

Rural Planner

Historic Preservationist

Water Resource Manager

Aid Worker

Conservation Officer

Climate Change Advisor

Transportation Advisor

Emergency Management
Advisor

Pollution Advisor

Project Manager

Housing Policy Analyst

Health Services Planner

Demographer

Development Worker

Community

Development Advisor

Economic Development Advisor

Municipal Policy Analyst

Regional Planner

Eco tourism Planner

Academic

Diplomat

Information Scientist

National Park Ranger

Spatial Data Analyst

Outdoor Recreation Manager

Real Estate Appraiser

Cartographer

GIS Specialist

Habitat Researcher

Atmospheric Data Technician

Remote Sensing Analyst

Map/Satellite Image Interpreter

Aerial Photo Analyst

Soil Scientist

Researcher

Hazard Risk Management Advisor

Teacher

Politician

Prime Minister

University and Careers

Geography is very much recognised as a subject of today and the future. As the need for more sustainable development increases, Geographers are very much in need, whether it is in urban planning, flood management, or climate change. Geography is offered at all the top universities, including Oxbridge. As the only subject that transverses both the sciences and the arts, Geographers develop a good all-round skills base which enables them to follow numerous careers.